Foundation of Faith

Do you know why “church” is so important to me? You say, “Yeah, because you are a preacher.”

Did you know that I wasn't born a preacher? Did you know that my dream as a young man was to be a biologist? I kept my biology notebooks for years after high school. I happily majored in biology in college for two years . . . until I encountered an obstacle that caused me to reconsider my career path.

That obstacle concerned a conflict with my faith. Or perhaps, more accurately, the faith that I had inherited. It was at that point that I decided I needed to determine for myself whether this faith I had been taught was true. That began a period of personal struggle for me - a period of reading, questioning, reasoning - looking for truth. Truth particularly about God.

I'm now convinced that we must all struggle to come to faith. Conviction (otherwise known as faith) comes only through weighing the evidence. Without knowing what was happening, I was developing my own faith. My faith is not blind. My faith is a reasoned faith. I've considered the alternative.

So church - and everything associated with it - is important to me. More important than my own life. More important than my family. (See Matthew 10:37-39). I don't love the church because I'm a preacher; I'm a preacher because I love the Lord and his church.

Because of that love, I have certain priorities in my life. One of them is - I will be present tonight for church assembly. I will be here Wednesday night. I don't have anything more important in my life. And I want to give my children and grandchildren what my parents gave to me - the foundation for faith upon which they can build their life.

-Ken Stegall
