Dear Graduate . . .

This is an exciting time in your life. Graduation marks what is probably the biggest milestone in your life thus far. Most of you are about to experience a level of freedom that you have never had. In the next few months, more than any other time in your life, you will develop habits/patterns that will determine the course of the remainder of your life.

Take some time to seriously ask yourself what you want your life to be twenty years from now.

Do you want to be married to a faithful, loving Christian? If so, then ask yourself, "Where can I find a person like that?" Spend your time in those places. Make friends with those kinds of people. Your reputation is determined by the people with whom you associate. Remember, the kind of person you're looking to marry is also looking for "that kind of person." So be the kind of person you want to marry.

That freedom you've been anticipating . . . it's a wonderful blessing. It provides you the opportunity to become what you dream of being. But it has a dark side—it also provides you the opportunity to completely destroy your life. The key is self-discipline. You know what's right and what's wrong. Don't experiment with things you know are wrong. Don't allow yourself to be in any situation that you wouldn't want to be in if the Lord were to return at that moment.

Graduation is an exciting time. You are standing at the threshold of the rest of your life. When you look out there, what do you see? What do you want? Don't abandon the right and good things you have learned so far. Use those principles as foundations upon which you build your life.

-Ken Stegall
